Greece. Gaza flotilla

▶ Sandra Ruch, 50, of Toronto, and Michael Coleman, 34, of Australia, celebrate their release yesterday after receiving suspended sentences in a Greek court. They were found guilty of obstructing a Greek coast guard vessel and leaving port without clearance in the foiled getaway of the Canadian boat Tahrir to Gaza.

Tahrir three found guilty – but are free

Sandra Ruch and Michael Coleman, along with Soha Kneen, 40, of Ottawa, were handed 30-day jail terms for their roles in Monday's dramatic run for open water. They received suspended sentences and are free, provided they are good for three years. They were ordered to pay €246 (about $340) in court costs. Meanwhile, hundreds of pro-Palestinian foreign activists are planning to fly into Tel Aviv this week.

TTC open to selling station-naming rights ◗ Some fear it will commercialize transit system ◗ $27-million-a-year contract allows giant vinyl ads on more buses and trains

Subway station-naming rights, advertisements on vehicle ceilings and more buses and streetcars wrapped with vinyl ads are all possible under a new advertising contract approved by the TTC yesterday.

The possible sale of station-naming rights was a new element in the $27-million-per-year advertising deal with Pattison Outdoor Advertising, which won the bid to sell advertising on the transit system for the next 12 years, to the end of 2023.

"There are probably some reasonable proposals that we could consider in partnership with other public institutions.... But I don't think the residents of Toronto want a Coca-Cola station."
COUN. JANET DAVIS

Ryerson University has already expressed interest in having its name placed on the Dundas subway station. But any decision to sell naming rights will be made by the nine city councillors who sit on the TTC commission, said Vince Rodo, general secretary of the transit system.

"We might allow Dundas/Ryerson or Dundas, sponsored by Ryerson. But again, that would come to the commission for approval."

A critic of the ad contract, Coun. Janet Davis, was comfortable with Ryerson coming on board since the campus is adjacent to Dundas station. She took a dim view of signing up commercial advertisers with no connection. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

TTC, the better way to find a date

It all started on the Red Rocket 60 years ago.

Bill Tee fell in love with his wife, Shirley, after one special moment on the Bloor line in 1950.

He used to ride the streetcar from Runnymede Road to Church Street and down Church every day to the Ryerson Institute of Technology, where he was studying mechanical and industrial technology.

Shirley, a petite 18-year-old beauty, rode the same car to her job at the Manufacturers Life Insurance Company on Bloor.

Bill was smitten. He already knew Shirley; they had been classmates at Runnymede Collegiate, but never had more than a casual acquaintance.

After a few months of riding the same car every morning and making polite small talk, an apprehensive Bill decided to try his luck and take things a step further. One day, as Shirley hung onto the bar while the streetcar rolled to a stop, Bill stepped next to her and put his left hand over her right.

When she turned to him and smiled instead of pulling away, he knew she was the girl for him.

"Our lives would have been completely different if she had pulled her hand away," says Bill. "I figure there was some destiny there."

Shirley claims she left her hand there so as not to be rude, but admits she was curious about the boy she only knew as the class clown who would fool around in French class and then say, "Moi?" innocently when caught by the teacher.

After that first brush of the fingertips on the Red Rocket, Bill looked up Shirley's phone number.

"He was persistent," she recalls. "We hadn't had a phone very long."

Pulling the old "oops, I put my hand over your hand," move now would likely get a young admirer a slap in the face (or worse) instead of a smile.

Doctor admits bringing growth hormone to U.S.

Toronto specialist who treated Tiger Woods had charges of smuggling, conspiring to lie to federal agents and defraud U.S. government and distributing HGH dismissed with his plea

A Canadian sports doctor whose high-profile clients have included Tiger Woods and Alex Rodriguez pleaded guilty in federal court yesterday to bringing into the United States unapproved drugs, including human growth hormone, that were used to treat professional athletes.

Dr. Anthony Galea, a healing specialist from Toronto who was sought out by the biggest names in sports, was indicted by a federal grand jury in October on charges that he smuggled human growth hormone and other substances into the United States and lied to border agents to avoid getting caught. He faces similar charges in Canada.

Most of the U.S. charges were dismissed with Galea's plea, and he agreed to co-operate with investigators and disclose the identities of his patients and their treatments.

Galea, who wasn't licensed to work in the United States, was accused of treating 20 professional athletes at their homes, hotels and friends' houses from October 2007 to September 2009.

The indictment did not identify clients, but prosecutors said they included golfers, professional baseball and football players.

Galea, 51, pleaded guilty in front of U.S. District Judge Richard Arcara to introducing mislabelled drugs into the U.S., eliminating the need for a trial — along with the likelihood that evidence and witness statements could publicly reveal information about who he visited.

Defence attorney Brian Greenspan, who represents Dr. Anthony Galea in the Canadian case, stressed his client pleaded guilty in New York to a charge involving improperly branded substances, which could include those with foreign labels. He said Tiger Woods, who recently has been blighted by personal problems and injuries, was not treated with HGH or any other illegal substances.

Play takes a jab at Soviet history

When survival is at stake, ideologies crumble and human nature can take a brutal turn. Things can get especially ugly if you're trapped in a motionless train car with Vladimir Lenin's corpse.

That is the premise of Tyumen, Then, a play about two Russian soldiers who flee Moscow in 1941 to protect the embalmed body of Lenin from Nazi attack. The play details the madness that ensues when the soldiers become trapped in the train boxcar somewhere between Moscow and Siberia with no food, water or a way out.

"It is based on a true footnote in history that the playwright stumbled upon," said director Andrea Donaldson. "(He) thought it was amazing that, upon being invaded, instead of putting efforts into guarding the people of Russia, they had put their energy into saving an idol that has been dead for over 20 years."

The play, which is this year's Fringe Festival special selection, is riddled with twists, turns and gut-wrenching tension that will have the audience on the edge of its seat, said Donaldson. And, although it analyzes the limits of communist ideology and human nature in the quest for survival, theatregoers can also expect a few laughs along the way.

"Despite the kind of seriousness of it being a Russian play about soldiers and Lenin, it's actually, despite all of that, really quite hilarious," she said.

Group claims possible shark fin ban is unfair

A local Chinese business group says Wednesday's decision by Mississauga council to pursue a ban of shark fin products is unfair.

The unanimous decision, backing a motion introduced by Coun. Pat Mullin, asked staff to report back on a possible bylaw to prohibit the sale or consumption of shark fin products in Mississauga.

Oakville council approved a similar motion Monday.

If the bylaw is eventually passed, Mississauga would join Brantford, which became the first municipality in Canada to ban shark fin products in May.

The issue is also being considered in Toronto. A potential ban will be discussed by the city's licensing and standards committee in September. It will go to council in October.

HANDOUT

▶ Mississauga Coun. Pat Mullin

Shark fin, for soup and other items, is common in Chinese-Canadian communities throughout the country and is commonly used in China.

Mississauga, Canada's sixth largest, has about 50,000 Chinese-Canadian residents.

Conservationists say shark finning, the practice of cutting off the fins and throwing the rest of the body back into the water to bleed to death, could mean the extinction of some types of sharks in 12 to 15 years.

But Stephen Chu, president of the Mississauga Chinese Business Association, says if Mississauga council does pass the bylaw, it would be unfair to local restaurateurs.

"People would just drive 10 minutes north (to Brampton) to get it. That's not fair to our businessmen."

Mississauga probe costs $6M

One councillor fears McCallion inquiry will exceed its $7-million budget

The cost of the Mississauga judicial inquiry has topped $6 million and at least one councillor is concerned the tab could exceed its budget.

At a council meeting yesterday, a city report stated the probe has cost a little more than $6.3 million. The city had budgeted $7 million.

The inquiry is looking into allegations that Mayor Hazel McCallion used undue influence while promoting a failed land deal that involved her son Peter's company, World Class Developments.

"It's going to go to $7 million and it could go beyond $7 million if the (inquiry) commissioner has other things he wants to investigate," said Coun. Katie Mahoney, who has opposed the probe from the start.

Mahoney's concerns are likely unwarranted, considering all the work has been done and all that's left is the report's release.

Justice Douglas Cunningham is expected to present it around Labour Day.

Also at issue is the recovery of about $265,000 from Peter McCallion, which the city spent for his legal representation after he testified he could not afford to pay any of it himself, despite evidence he lives a fairly extravagant lifestyle.

A city spokesperson said council will discuss the issue once it has Cunningham's report.

Another matter to be discussed at that time is whether the city will pursue up to $400,000 owed by World Class Developments for permits and applications. The company was able to continue with its planning despite the unpaid fees.

Argos sack TTC ad amid pressure

City councillor complains that ads could be seen to promote domestic violence rather than football

THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Ricky Foley

The Toronto Argonauts are replacing a controversial ad for the team's CFL regular-season home opener after a complaint from a city councillor.

The posters appearing on the TTC show a picture of tough looking, tattooed defensive end Ricky Foley with the words, "Home is where the heart is. It's also where we hurt people."

Those will be replaced in the next couple of days with new posters bearing the same art but new words: "It's not the heat that makes them sweat."

The football club decided late Monday to make the change after learning of a complaint from Coun. Michael Layton (Ward 19, Trinity-Spadina), said Argos' vice-president of marketing and communications David Bedford.

In the context of football the ads made sense. But, "Even one complaint is something we take seriously and certainly something of that gravitas," Bedford said.

Layton, who wrote a letter after discussing the ads with the White Ribbon Campaign to end violence against women, said the football club has responded correctly.

"They acted quickly, with conviction and they should be commended for doing the right thing and we should cheer them on," he said.

"The best possible (outcome) would be for them to go out and tell other guys with the White Ribbon campaign that domestic violence isn't acceptable."

Bedford said the club expects to meet with White Ribbon representatives in the next couple of weeks and if there's a natural fit they might pursue the idea.

Pickering's bridge to the future takes shape

Fifteen years ago it would have been the bridge to nowhere. Today, it's Pickering's connection to the future.

Spanning 14 lanes of Canada's busiest highway, the 250-metre, mesh-covered tube is rapidly taking shape, linking the GO station on the south side of the 401 to the city's burgeoning downtown core on the north.

But the unique $20.5-million bridge just east of Liverpool Road is more than a safe, weather-protected crossing for pedestrians and cyclists. It is, Mayor Dave Ryan proudly states, a "catalyst for growth" in the city of 94,000 east of Toronto.

"Now we have a way of fulfilling our role as a destination place," he says of the gateway to Durham Region. The structure is also a fitting milestone during Pickering's bicentennial year, he adds. Expected to be completed in September, the fully accessible bridge will be wrapped in a metallic skin and illuminated with LED lighting, giving it the appearance of a giant, glowing worm at night.

Tragic story may live on — in movie

- Twilight actress could possibly play Casey Anthony
- Not guilty verdict earlier this week shocked many

11-hour justice

- Caylee disappeared in June 2008, and her body was found in woods.
- A case that involved months of forensic investigation, weeks of testimony and untold hours of media analysis was decided by jurors in less than 11 hours.
- The not guilty verdict that could free Casey Anthony by this weekend stunned spectators, legal pundits and the prosecutors.

The book and movie deal rumours are already swirling less than a day after Casey Anthony was found not guilty in her two-year-old daughter Caylee Anthony's death.

Twilight actress Kristen Stewart has already been pegged in online speculation as a top choice to play the Florida woman, who was scheduled to be sentenced today for four misdemeanour counts of lying to investigators.

On Tuesday, a Florida jury found Anthony not guilty of first-degree murder, aggravated manslaughter and aggravated child abuse.

When the verdict was released, celebrities, media personalities and law experts reacted mostly in shock, with some predicting Anthony making millions from her story.

"Why can't she make money off of her story?" lawyer Drew Findling asked on CNN.

"You've seen so many cases where witnesses for the prosecution have profited from the case. Look at the O.J. Simpson case and how the prosecutor, who lost the case, wrote books and made money afterwards. So why can't Casey do it?"

Hot dog! Pooch travels 4,500 km — but how?

A Montreal pooch is set to return home from an unscheduled, 4,500-kilometre journey that over the last year allowed her to see more of Canada than most Canadians do.

The black Labrador named Pollux, a rescue dog who hated water and rain, bolted from the backyard during a soggy day in June 2010 and left her east-end Montreal home.

Her owners believe she fled through an open gate. It's unclear what sort of adventures the littlest hobo had next.

All they know is that she wound up just outside Kamloops, B.C., where she was found last month.

"She went from the east side of town to the west side of the country," joked Isabelle Robitaille from her Montreal home yesterday.

How she got to B.C. remains a mystery. Details of the trip remain a secret to everyone but Pollux.

"We don't know. And she can't talk," said Robitaille, who has a number of theories about what happened."

Robitaille suspects she might have hopped into a freight train to get out of the rain. But she said it's also possible she was picked up by a trucker or a family heading west.

Robitaille gave up hope — and even went as far as getting a new dog, assuming her three kids would never see Pollux again as the months dragged on.

Fast-forward to Canada Day 2011 and a shocking phone call from the SPCA in Kamloops: A dog with a microchip implanted in her skin and containing Robitaille's contact information was found in B.C.

▶ U.S. President Barack Obama responds to a question from the Republican leader of the House of Representatives, Speaker John Boehner, during a Twitter town hall yesterday in the East Room of the White House.

U.S. President Barack Obama answered questions from Twitter users across the U.S. in a town hall meeting yesterday that used the popular social media service and focused on jobs and the economy.

White House officials say Obama sees social media as a way to reach beyond the mainstream media and interact with Americans directly, particularly the younger and more tech-savvy part of the electorate as his campaign for re-election in 2012 ramps up.

Twitter selected the questions for the U.S. president from among the thousands of inquires submitted, including the Republican leader of the House of Representatives, Speaker John Boehner, who asked Obama, "Where are the jobs?"

"This is a slightly skewed question," Obama said of his political rival's inquiry.

Obama went on to answer Boehner's question by noting that the U.S. economy is, in fact, creating jobs, though not at a pace anyone should be satisfied with. He said there is more the U.S. government could do to boost the economy, but he hasn't always been able to get Republican support for doing so.

The first question for Obama asked him what mistakes he had made in handling the recession and what he would do differently. Obama defended his stimulus program as "the right thing to do." But he allowed that his administration had underestimated the severity of the recession, and so he did not prepare the American people "for how long this was going to take" and the tough choices that lay ahead. Obama also said the problems in the housing market were more stubborn than expected and he'd had to revamp his housing assistance programs several times.

- Twitter users had to keep their questions to the networking site's 140-character limit. But Obama had no such restrictions.
- He answered in his trademark, lengthy form to questions on college costs, immigration, collective bargaining rights, the debt limit, manufacturing jobs, the housing crisis and other topics as Twitter users sent questions in by the tens of thousands.

James (Whitey) Bulger pleaded not guilty yesterday to a racketeering indictment that accuses the reputed former crime boss of participating in 19 murders, some dating back to the 1970s.

Bulger said "not guilty" in a clear voice several times during his arraignment on the 32-count indictment in U.S. District Court in Boston.

The pleas by Bulger, a former FBI informant, came 16 years after he fled following a federal agent's warning about a separate indictment, which has since been dismissed.

Bulger, 81, escaped prosecution until his capture last month in California.

Bulger is the reputed former leader of the Winter Hill Gang, who, for decades, was one of Boston's most notorious gangsters.

CALIFORNIA WILDFIRE

Prof wins suit over Einstein papers

A California family must pay $750,000 for a massive 2007 wildfire that destroyed papers written by Nobel Prize-winning physicist Albert Einstein, a jury decided.

The jury came to its verdict last week against Margaret Pavese, her husband, Lawrence, and her father-in-law, Ernest, in a negligence lawsuit filed by San Jose State University chemistry Prof. Dan Straus, the San Jose Mercury News reported Tuesday.

Margaret Pavese was found responsible for starting a 195-square kilometre wildfire in September 2007 after she used a metal barrel to burn paper plates and left the blaze unattended. The wildfire destroyed four homes and 20 outbuildings. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two dead in B.C. plane crash

Two people have died in the crash of a light plane in the Fraser Valley, east of Vancouver.

RCMP Insp. Bryon Massie said the plane went down late Tuesday afternoon. He says search-and-rescue crews and the coroner are preparing to recover the bodies from the wreckage at first light.

Assaults occurred within 20 km of UN peacekeeping base in Congo

The fighters in eastern Congo raped everyone in sight: Women, men, even children.

The vicious attacks prompted an international outcry, but the UN said yesterday that one year later only a single suspect has been indicted.

Some survivors still haven't received the medical care they need, and even a judicial inquiry into the violence has had to be suspended after reprisal attacks targeting some of the victims.

In a corner of the world where rape has become an endemic weapon of war, the Walikale attacks in late July and early August 2010 drew attention because of their extreme brutality: The fighters forced husbands and children to watch as they gang-raped the villagers for four days.

The UN mission promised to work strenuously to bring the rapists to justice, as did Congolese government officials.

"The investigators learned that most of the rapes, carried out with despicable viciousness by groups of men, were committed in the presence of the victims' children."

UN HIGH COMMISSIONER FOR HUMAN RIGHTS NAVI PILLAY

But yesterday's report by the UN Joint Human Rights Office in Congo noted that only one person has been indicted on criminal charges in connection with the violence. UN High Commissioner for Human Rights Navi Pillay urged the Congolese government to do more to stop the violence. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Afghan mission memorial has a new home

A memorial honouring Canadians who died during the Afghan mission has a new home.

The Camp Mirage Memorial Cairn was officially unveiled yesterday during a ceremony at the National Air Force Museum of Canada on CFB Trenton.

The monument was originally located at Camp Mirage, a key base in Dubai used to support the Afghan war.

The idea of a memorial monument at Camp Mirage was born in 2005 and the cairn was officially in place a year later.

"It's fitting that the Camp Mirage monument is finally here in Trenton on the same route that all of these personnel take when going home," said Defence Minister Peter MacKay, who attended the ceremony.

Canadian soldiers who have died during the Afghan combat mission, which is ending this month, are repatriated at CFB Trenton.

"Given the size of the sacrifice, we witness one small but significant and incredibly powerful symbol returning home to Canada," said MacKay.

There was standing room only at the ceremony, as military personnel, dignitaries, and families of the fallen soldiers crowded into the room where the memorial is on display.

Worry-Free Travel Is Just A Few Clicks Away

Travelling more than once a year?

If you take more than one trip a year, chances are it's cheaper to buy a full-year travel policy than it is to buy one-off coverage each time you leave your province for business or pleasure. For as little as $275/year a family of four can be covered for complete medical and non-medical travel insurance for one full year.

Travel Medical Insurance

You might have travel medical insurance coverage from your employer, but it's important to make sure you are fully covered. Nothing would be worse than needing medical coverage while out-of-town and finding out after the fact that your work policy only covers half of the expenses incurred...you could be out-of-pocket several thousand dollars, depending on the nature of your claim. Alternatively, you may think that all of your in-country travel is covered by your provincial plan; but, you might be surprised to learn what this plan pays for when travelling in other provinces. It pays to do your homework and a small yearly fee could be the best money you've ever spent.

Non-Medical Travel Insurance

Even if you are fully covered for medical, it's still a good idea to purchase a non-medical plan that can cover you for trip cancellation, trip interruption and baggage loss. When booking any trip, your travel agent will always offer this type of coverage and it's generally a good idea to make sure that you are covered for these items; however, it's usually cheaper to purchase a yearly plan rather than buy one-off policies each time you travel.

Travel with Confidence

Once you've bought your yearly policy you can rest assured that you, and your family members, are covered for all of your trips – even a 24 hour shopping trip to Buffalo. You'll also get the added advantage of knowing that there will be someone available 24/7 to help you in the case of an emergency.

Royal couple's visit lifts spirits of fire-ravaged town

'It's a pretty big honour and a privilege even for them to think of us over here in a small little town,' Slave Lake resident said of the surprise visitors

Prince William and Kate made a detour to bring much-needed cheer to Slave Lake residents who face the daunting task of rebuilding their fire-scarred town.

The northern Alberta community was not on the official royal itinerary, but the couple wanted to make a special stop after they left Yellowknife to show support for the many people who lost everything.

More than 400 homes and businesses — about one-third of the town — were reduced to ash and debris when a wind-whipped forest fire swept through in May.

Will and Kate's two-hour visit started with a tour by minibus of devastated neighbourhoods. After that, they were driven to Northern Lakes College to meet with residents, firefighters and rescue crews.

The crowd waiting outside started chanting "Will and Kate" the moment they caught sight of the pair getting off the bus. The two waved briefly before heading inside.

Kate was sporting casual attire — blue pants, a ruffled cream blouse and a navy blazer.

People eager for a glimpse of the royal visitors started gathering in the early morning hours and were pressed four and five deep against the barricades.

Sheri Smears came with her children and grandchildren. They were all wearing "I (Heart) SL" T-shirts and the youngsters carried signs thanking the prince and his wife for their visit.

"It's so nice to know that people think that this was a big deal," Smears said. "It's not just a little blip and I think the reason that they came here is because the people of Slave Lake have shown their spirit. Instead of whining and complaining, they are just forging ahead."

Dwayne Verschoor made a welcome sign that he hoped was big enough for the couple to see from the sky. The oil and gas operator assembled friends and family and provided cases of red spray paint to scrawl a greeting in a grassy field next to the airport.

He planned the mammoth "Welcome Will and Kate" sign when rumours started circulating days ago that the royals would be stopping in the town, about 280 kilometres north of Edmonton.

The surprise visit was announced Tuesday by officials who said the couple wanted to see the fire's aftermath and meet with residents.

Fire disaster

- The Insurance Bureau of Canada has reported that the insured damage caused by the fire totals $700 million, making it the second costliest insured disaster in Canadian history. The ice storm that hit Quebec and Ontario in 1998 cost $1.8 billion.
- Some Slave Lake residents are living in campers and mobile homes. Lucky ones, such as nursery school teacher Karen Scharf, have found rental housing. She said it's a tight squeeze with five adults, two dogs and a cat, but at least they will have a roof over their heads for the winter.

Deadly outbreak sparks rallies

Niagara residents say officials waited too long to reveal killer disease

About 100 Niagara-area residents took to the streets yesterday to show their frustration with health care in the region.

Demonstrators held signs reading, "Hospitals in peril," "Why were we not told sooner?" and "Third World health care? You must live in Niagara."

The rally took place outside the Greater Niagara General Hospital, one of three area hospitals with clusters of C. difficile cases.

The bacterial disease has been linked to the deaths of 16 patients at the centres run by the Niagara Health System since late May.

Critics accuse the hospital network of mishandling the outbreak, declared June 23 after several deaths had already occurred.

As of Tuesday, 43 patients with the bug were in isolation in the Niagara Falls, Welland and St. Catharines General hospitals. THE CANADIAN PRESS

South Korea to host 2018 Winter Olympics

Town of Pyeongchang wins games on third try

South Koreans roared with delight, danced, hugged and cried tears of joy after the town of Pyeongchang was awarded the 2018 Winter Olympics after two previous tries.

The ecstatic scenes played out early today after the vote by the International Olympic Committee was announced on a giant television screen at a ski jump venue Pyeongchang plans to use in 2018.

The town of 47,000 near South Korea's east coast was the favourite to win the vote after being narrowly defeated by Vancouver and Sochi in its two previous attempts to host a Winter Olympics.

"This is indescribably joyous," said Lim Myeong-rae, a 53-year-old who recalled riding wooden skis on a Pyeongchang hill as a boy.

Video chat service will solidify communications hub role, analysts say

Some paid Skype functions likely

JUSTIN SULLIVAN/GETTY IMAGES

It's official — Facebook is launching a video chat service on the social network, powered by Skype.

The video chat application, which will be rolled out immediately to Facebook users, is simple to use, said CEO Mark Zuckerberg at a news conference at the company's headquarters in Palo Alto, Calif.

All you have to do is click on a button within the already existing chat function, Zuckerberg said. And it doesn't matter if you have the app or technology to launch a video chat — it will be automatically downloaded when you first initiate a call, he said.

Facebook is also improving some of its other services, announcing it will be setting up users with the ability to have ad hoc chats through the Group Function. Facebook will also be offering a new design for Chats that will allow for a sidebar beside the Chat window so users can see more clearly who is and isn't online.

Zuckerberg said he sees the trend of co-operation in the high-tech sector, such as the partnership between Skype and Facebook, growing.

Turning up heat

Facebook's video chat service comes a week after Google Inc. introduced a social networking service dubbed Google+.

- Many of Google+'s social networking features are similar to those already available on Facebook, but Google has attracted praise for its videoconferencing function, which allows up to 10 people on the service to participate in a video call.
- Facebook's new offering initially is limited to one-to-one video chat.
- The deal intensifies Facebook's co-operation with Microsoft Corp., which is in the process of acquiring Skype for $8.5 billion US.
- Facebook now has more than 750 million users. Skype has about 145 million regular users.

Banks hold the key to stopping spam: Study

Almost all shady purchases are by credit card, study says Many company names trace back to same seller

A massive two-year study of spam has found: 1) You do get the Viagra. 2) You don't get more spam. 3) Banks help them make a lot of money.

The millions of dollars in firewall security that software companies spend aren't slowing spammers down, but a simple concerted effort by banks could, said computer scientist Kirill Levchenko.

Using web crawlers, Levchenko and other University of California computer scientists tracked purchases, sales and credit card transactions.

The Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce turned up on its list of merchant banks authorizing or settling transactions for spam-advertised purchases from World Pharmacy. But CIBC spokesman Rob McLeod said the bank identification number the study tracked had actually been sold by CIBC to Global Payments Inc. in 2001.

Other banks identified are in Russia, Latvia, Azerbaijan and St. Kitts & Nevis.

The banks and payment processors are the "weakest link" in the chain and the way to kill illegal spam purchases, Levchenko said.

"If the banks refuse to process these transactions, you significantly affect their bottom line … It is the banking component of the spam value chain that is the least studied and, we believe, the most critical," the study said.

NOT A MAN FOR ALL SEASONS

HE SAYS ...

JOHN MAZEROLLE
METRO

There are two types of people in this world: People who like summer, and me.

After much consideration, I have decided to side with me.

Summer has its perks, sure — a box of Junior Mints left in the car transforms magically into one giant Junior Mint — but it's still the most overrated season. Its default No. 1 position bugs me: summer gets celebrated simply for arriving on the scene, the Miami Heat of Mother Nature.

Well, I'm here to speak truth to power: Summer is, at best, tied with winter for last place. So much of summer's warm reputation doesn't hold up in the cold light of day.

Take summer vacation, that idyllic childhood window filled with bee stings, bike crashes and, if you went with the full package, broken bones.

These are the best days of our lives?

"Even summer's most cited perk, the weather, is not all it's cracked up to be. On any given day there is bound to be a smog alert, a humidex warning, a UV warning ..."

The backyard playground alone was a death trap: A hard plastic swing, apparently coated with Pam, that caused every child to slip toward the ground face-first with the force of a robin into a bay window. This resulted in the official childhood Five-Alarm Cry: Stunned silence/siren wail/more silence/remembering to breathe/more wailing.

The slippery swing seat is baffling in retrospect, because the slide attached on the side was so non-slippery that nothing could go down it, including marbles. Kids didn't slide down it, so much as shimmy. Water might have gone down it, except the slide was made of metal and often got so hot that it would start emitting X-rays. "It's nice out, so don't play on the slide!" was a common parental warning.

Of course, now that I'm an adult I can see there's more to summer than just potential injuries — there's also potential death.

Between beach riptides, exploding barbecues and wildlife attacks, there is hardly a chance to contract West Nile.

Even summer's most cited perk, the weather, is not all it's cracked up to be. On any given day there is bound to be a smog alert, a humidex warning, a UV warning, a severe-thunderstorm watch, a tornado warning, a watch-for-warnings watch, a stolen-watch warning or a "special weather statement" that warns of some weather pattern you've never heard of before, like a "Manure Storm" or "Smulch."

All things considered, it's better to hibernate until winter. I recommend a stockpile of Junior Mints to see you through.

Worth mentioning

LOS ANGELES. It began as a bright white dot in Saturn's northern hemisphere. Within days, the dot grew larger and stormier.

Soon, the tempest enveloped the ringed planet, triggering lightning flashes thousands of times more intense than on Earth.

The international Cassini spacecraft and ground telescopes have been tracking the turbulence since last December, visible from Earth as a type of storm known as a "Great White Spot."

"It's still going like crazy," said Cassini project scientist Linda Spilker of the NASA Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Such planet-wide weather disturbances are rare on Saturn, where the atmosphere is typically hazy and calm. Since 1876, astronomers have observed only five other megastorms on Saturn.

At the height of the storm, Cassini detected 10 lightning strikes per second. Scientists said the electrical activity emitted by the bursts were 10,000 times stronger than lightning on Earth.

WEIRD NEWS

Now you see it, now you don't

Police are on the hunt for a man who walked into a San Francisco art gallery, grabbed a valuable pencil drawing by Pablo Picasso off the wall and then fled in a waiting taxicab.

Police said Tuesday the drawing, worth hundreds of thousands of dollars, was taken from the Weinstein Gallery near Union Square.

The gallery said Picasso created the one-of-a-kind drawing titled Tete de Femme in 1965.

Officer Albie Esparza told the San Francisco Chronicle that police hope a member of the public might recognize the piece if someone attempts to sell it.

Other artists whose works are still on display at the gallery include Marc Chagall, Salvador Dali and Joan Miro.

Police described the suspect as a man in his 30s wearing loafers and dark glasses.

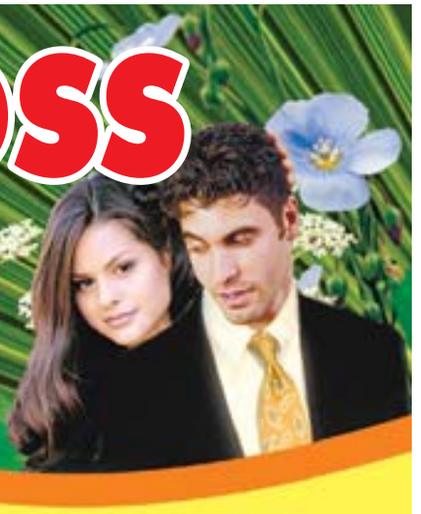
STOP HAIR LOSS



BIO-FEN PLUS™ is a natural health product used in the treatment of hereditary androgenic alopecia (AGA) in adults (male or female pattern baldness.) It contains scientifically calculated proportions of extracts of fenugreek seeds, saw palmetto berries and flax lignans. Each are known to possess an inhibitor of the enzyme responsible for causing male or female pattern baldness. It also contains a mixture of B vitamins, folate and biotin to help metabolize these herbal extracts so that they are more bio-available, and to support the growth of strong and healthy hair.

How does BIO-FEN PLUS™ work?

Specific compounds within the herbal extracts inhibit the 5-alpha-reductase (and therefore reduce DHT) to prevent or slow down the rate of hair loss. This process is the principle by which the prescription drugs such as Propecia (finasteride) work. However, BIO-FEN PLUS™ also contains additional compounds which remove excess cholesterol and testosterone – the building blocks of DHT.

BIO-FEN PLUS™ also contains vitamins to increase blood flow to the small capillaries that feed the hair roots, to deliver the active herbal compounds and remove waste. Therefore, BIO-FEN PLUS™ provides a natural, safer alternative to expensive drugs, and/or expensive & painful hair transplants. As with the prescription alternatives, results vary from person to person, and no one product will work for everyone.

How long must I use BIO-FEN PLUS™ ?

BIO-FEN PLUS™ capsules are usually effective at stopping hair loss within the first two months. However, since healthy hair grows only about 1 cm each month, it may take up to three months before you notice that hair growth is increased or further hair loss is stopped.

Anyone experiencing new growth will see it within four to six months. Once results become apparent, some users are able to reduce their BIO-FEN PLUS™ supplement dose to one capsule every second or every third day. Some clients will continue to take BIO-FEN PLUS™ daily. Once you stop completely, however, your hair growth pattern will slowly go back to the point where you started.

How safe is BIO-FEN PLUS™ ?

The ingredient combination in BIO-FEN PLUS™ is generally safe for most adults. However, the following cautions are advised:

Folic acid: Consult a health care practitioner if you are uncertain whether or not you are taking adequate vitamin B12, as folate supplementation can mask a Vitamin B12 deficiency.

Vitamin B3: Consult a health care practitioner prior to use if you have impaired liver function.

Vitamin B6: Consult a health care practitioner prior to use if you are taking levodopa.

What is the quality of BIO-FEN PLUS™ ?

BIO-FEN PLUS™ is manufactured in Canada according to a quality assurance program called Good Manufacturing Practices (GMP). This ensures that the ingredients are tested for their level of quality, potency & purity, prior to production and again prior to sale.

See our website to locate your nearest Health Food Store or Pharmacy that offers BIO-FEN PLUS™ and other quality products from Hair Grow Technology.

If you have any questions or comments about our products that target hair loss and support the growth of strong, healthy hair, please do not hesitate to contact us.

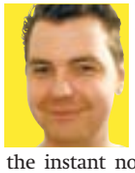
Toronto's annual prix fixe festival presents foodies with numerous restauranting options

BACKSTAGE PASS

IAN GORMELY
METRO TORONTO



Toronto winters are enough to send even the most ardent foodie running for the instant noodles at the back of the cupboard. So when the snow banks melt, it's a cause for celebration. With summer now fully in bloom, the timing couldn't be better for Summerlicious the city's annual prix fixe dining bonanza.

And with changing seasons come changing eating habits. Dishes should focus on the simplicity of their ingredients says Anthony Rose, executive chef at the Drake Hotel.

In dark of winter, "you can think about your meals for days," he says, whereas capturing every last drop of sunshine is the priority come July. "The goal is to make and eat dinner in a hour."

Rose, a native Torontonian, came home six years ago after a five year stint in New York, settling in at the Drake because it's "interesting, different and a lot of fun."

"I love it because we never stand still. We're always reinventing ourselves."

For Summerlicious, Rose cherry picks the best of the Drake's regular summer menu to give diners a wide swath of flavours.

CONNIE TSANG

▶ Chef Anthony Rose, executive chef at the Drake Hotel.

A 25 year veteran, Rose's dishes focus on ingredients that are "good, local and delicious," a philosophy he learned working in both San Francisco and New York.

He blends ingredients like eggplant, Parmesan, chilies with "tomatoes everywhere" to create "picnic-style summer food."

Summerlicious coincides with the Drake's Dining Roadshow that finds hotel literally reinventing its back dining room to create a "pop-up" restaurant.

Based around the concept of a summer-school style dining hall, the new space comes complete with communal tables made from old bowling alley lanes.

"Its upscale delicious summer food," says Rose, "that's kitchy, simple and good."

"You could make it at home," he says, but it wouldn't be nearly as good.

Foodies

Eat up. With more than 150 participating restaurants, deciding where to go for Summerlicious can be a daunting task. "It's tough," confirms Rose. Foodie websites can certainly point you in the right direction but the key, he says is to know what you like. Rose eats out at least three times a week, mixing in new restaurants with old favourites. "Toronto is becoming a culinary power house," he says. And while Rose is the first to admit that his dining habits are definitely not the norm, diners he says, both experienced and nubes, should take advantage of the prix fixe deals Summerlicious has to offer.

Jagger gets SuperHeavy

Rolling Stones frontman collaborates with four other artists to create eclectic, 'unclassifiable' sound

Mick Jagger isn't sure where his latest musical creation will end up on iTunes.

The Rolling Stones rocker has teamed up with Eurythmics co-founder Dave Stewart, reggae maestro Damian Marley, soul songtress Joss Stone and Slumdog Millionaire composer A.R. Rahman for SuperHeavy, a new group fusing their different styles on an as-yet untitled album set for release Sept. 20 in the United States, and a day before in the rest of the world.

"What bit of iTunes genres does it go on? The unknowable? Isn't there an unknown section?" Jagger joked during a preview event last week at Jim Henson Studios, where the group recorded some of their eclectic music.

Stewart called the collaboration wide-ranging. The recording process began in Hollywood with the entire group, but they also recorded separately. Other recordings took place in Florida, France, Greece, Turkey, India and the Caribbean.

Stewart said the group recorded about 35 hours of music with some songs originally lasting "an hour and 10 minutes" before they were whittled down.

One of seven tracks teased Thursday included Miracle Worker, the first single off the album,

A song for the troops

After penning the patriotic ode Highway of Heroes, Bob Reid had the opportunity to travel to war-torn Kandahar and witness the efforts of Canadian soldiers first-hand.

The experience inspired him and only deepened his appreciation of the sacrifice of the Canadian troops. So as most of those men and women now prepare to return home with the Canadian war effort winding to a close, Reid wanted to do his part to ensure they were greeted with a hearty reception.

"(At) the end of the Second World War, there were ticker tape parades in the streets for returning soldiers," Reid said.

"It's a different world now and obviously this was a different kind of conflict. But still, I just thought it would be a shame if the mission ended, they came home after all of that sacrifice, and there wasn't any kind of recognition."

That's what prompted Reid to write his new song, Soldier, Welcome Home, now available on iTunes and as a CD single. A portion of proceeds is being directed to the Wounded Warriors charity.

It was back in November 2009 when Reid released Highway of Heroes. The 47-year-old had long held an interest in music, but only as a hobby — he had never made a professional-calibre record before.

He was stunned by the response to his humble tune, which lingered for months on the Nielsen SoundScan singles chart.

It also prompted an invitation to perform in Afghanistan for NATO forces — some of whom were already familiar with the track.

"They really appreciated the fact that someone would make a gesture like that, would put feelings of respect and pride and also sadness for fallen soldiers into a song," said Reid, before emphatically pointing out that he's far from the only songwriter to do so.

which features the vocalists crooning: "Ooh, you're a miracle worker/Ooh, you're the surgeon of love."

The group filmed a music video last Wednesday for the mid-tempo track, which like most of the music previewed, combined rock, soul, reggae and world music.

"Working with four other vocalists was interesting to me," said Jagger. "I've never actually done it before. Normally I have to do everything, which I'm quite happy to do. Don't worry. It was kind of fun because when we had to finish it off, I realized we all had a part to play."

Jagger said the group would wait for reaction to the album before deciding if the supergroup will go on tour.

"We'll probably end up playing in the unclassified gig section," Stewart quipped.

"Yeah, in a tent at Glastonbury with the unclassifiable acts," Jagger added.

Reid was particularly impressed by witnessing the process of rebuilding Afghanistan. He saw Canadians building new schools, working to eradicate polio and rehabilitating the irrigation and water-supply systems so vital to the country's agricultural development.

"It was just a life-changing experience," Reid said.

"After seeing first-hand the work that the men and women were doing, I was really struck by that and so impressed by everyone that I met."

Reid's song is meant to honour the sacrifices made by Canadians overseas and celebrate their return.

"Though a half a world away, we were behind you every day/ And with grateful hearts, we're so glad to say/ Soldier, welcome home," Reid sings in the swaying song's chorus.

Tuesday marked the end of Canada's war, as Canuck troops formally handed the battlefield over to American units.

And Reid, for one, was elated to see that happen.

"I'm so glad to see them coming out of harm's way and knowing that they're heading back home to Canada and back to their families again," he said.

As far as Reid's hopes for his song? Well, he has a day job as a communications consultant with Veritas Communications and doesn't seem interested in pursuing a career in music (he says it's unlikely he ever tries to put together a full album).

Fleet Foxes lead singer Robin Pecknold talks about the band's follow-up album, Helplessness Blues

PAT HEALY
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Fleet Foxes singer Robin Pecknold has made no secret of his struggles to overcome the dreaded "sophomore slump."

After the folkie Seattle combo reached critical acclaim with their self-titled debut in 2008, it seemed that topping that effort would be difficult.

But with Helplessness Blues, it seems they have topped themselves. The songs are confident, richly acoustic and full of the energetic introspection that seems to hit artists hardest in their 20s. (Everyone from Rumer to Zach Galifianakis is into the new album.)

Pecknold has said the reason that it took so long to write and record their follow-up was his picky nature, which even led to him scrapping recordings the band had reportedly spent several thousands of dollars on. But it has paid off.

How does it feel to finally take these songs from the incubation process of writing and recording to audiences?

It's been good to have the chance to sort of make the songs more physical and less cerebral. You can play louder or have it sound huge without feeling like the sound is too big and without the kind of hemming and hawing about what you're doing in the studio. So that's been good. It's not like we had the songs all worked out live before we recorded, so this has kind of been our first chance to get to know them in some ways.

Were there any challenges in making that jump?

We had to rehearse for almost a month just to get all the parts down and all the chord changes. So that took a while, but it was fun to do as well.

What's been the biggest surprise as far as crowd response?

There's been a few. It really just depends on the crowd. We open the show with the instrumental from the album. It's kind of funny that people are like, "Yeah!" for this little, small instrumental song. And there's this one line in one of the new songs where I really push my voice, and after that line in The Shrine people are always like, "Yeah!"

CONTRIBUTED

▶ Fleet Foxes

There are a lot of fruits blossoming within the lyrics of these songs. One goes, "If I had an orchard...."

My grandpa was an orchardist in Wenatchee, which is in Washington. It's a big apple-growing region. There's an apple and orchard iconography up at the cabin. He's passed away now, but me and my brother Sean just go up there and work on stuff together, and there's a lot of stuff up there that's apple-related and there's Yeats poems on the walls. I feel like that's probably where a little bit of it came from. The orchard thing is not literal at all, or wasn't meant it to be. I didn't even think it would be taken literally. I mean, I probably could have done a better job, but it was sort of a personal version of If I Had a Hammer, like that sort of meaning.

Wolverine sings and dances in T.O.

Hugh Jackman debuts one-man show at Princess of Wales

HANDOUT

▶ Hugh Jackman in Concert runs at the Princess of Wales Theatre through July 17.

It was a family affair as stage and screen star Hugh Jackman debuted his one-man song-and-dance show in Toronto Tuesday.

The affable Aussie actor performed a surprise serenade for his actress wife, Deborra-Lee Furness, as she sat in the audience during opening night of Hugh Jackman in Concert at the Princess of Wales Theatre.

"She said: 'I'm going to kill you for this,'" he told the gushing crowd after he sang The Way You Look Tonight to Furness and then pulled her out of the audience to give her a big smooch in the aisle.

"I have so much lip gloss on my lips, baby it kind of feels good," he later joked as he hopped back onstage.

Jackman's 11-year-old son, Oscar, was also at the show, playing didgeridoo onstage in a musical tribute to Jackman's native Australia and its Aboriginal people.

The X-Men star, who sang Somewhere Over the Rainbow during the tribute, told the audience it was Oscar's first time onstage and then kissed him on the cheek. Jackman also got sentimental as he performed his closing number, Once Before I Go from the Australian musical The Boy From Oz, which earned him a Tony Award for his role as 1970s singer-songwriter Peter Allen.

"That snuck up on me," the 42-year-old Sydney-born star said as he got choked up and teary-eyed during the tune.

Jackman, best known for his role as Wolverine in the X-Men film franchise, performed for nearly two hours without an intermission on opening night of the show, which plays through July 17 in the city.

Backed by an 18-piece orchestra and two female singers, he sang a wide range of his favourite musical numbers, from Mack the Knife to Luck Be a Lady Tonight and (Shake, Shake, Shake) Shake Your Booty.

"All you Wolverine fans who got dragged here tonight, you just passed musical theatre 101," he quipped.

Between tunes, Jackman told stories about his life and career. Furness, he explained, wasn't impressed when she first read the script for his part as Wolverine in X-Men.

"She thought it was ridiculous," he said, noting he had to audition for the part seven times while he was starring in Oklahoma! in London.

"It's the only time in 14 years of marriage that my wife has ever been wrong," he added with a laugh.

Loving Toronto

- Hugh Jackman in Concert is in Toronto after a sold out, critically hailed debut run in San Francisco in May.
- The magnetic Hollywood heavyweight signed on to do the show after filming for Wolverine was postponed. He had just two months to put the production together from scratch.
- In a recent interview with The Canadian Press, Jackman said he wanted Toronto to be the show's second stop because he knew it was a great theatre town, having shot his first American film, 2000's X-Men, here.

A film with a 'true story'

Metro speaks to David Carr about the documentary Page One

NED EHRBAR
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN HOLLYWOOD

Director Andrew Rossi's Page One: Inside the New York Times spends a year behind the scenes in the Eighth Avenue skyscraper home of the "paper of record" — most of it with Times staffer David Carr.

A media and culture columnist for the Times and the man behind the paper's Awards Season blog, the Carpetbagger, Carr makes for compelling viewing. He sat down with Metro to discuss the film, how he's portrayed and finding a digital home for newspapers.

The film portrays you as somewhat of a technological Luddite, compared to your younger colleagues. But that's not really accurate, is it?

I'm a digital adopter, not native. The thing is that movies — Andrew made a movie-movie, and did I like everything in that movie? No, I did not.

Did I think everything was just so? No.

Did he tell a true story about what we did? Yeah, he did.

I'm positioned in the film as a defender of the New York Times, which then translates to defender of old media, even though I've spent the past 10 years sort of on the vanguard.

The film features Rupert Murdoch extolling the iPad as the future of newspaper. What do you think of what's become of his iPad venture, the Daily?

I was a firm believer that it was a place for them to put time and energy, and that it was a good muscle for an organization of that size — some of whose products I admire.

I think the face-plant has been unbelievable. It's not part of the ecosystem of the web. And here's the thing — It's not like these guys don't know what they're doing.

I said that Rupert Murdoch would ruin the Wall Street Journal — he has not. They rolled it toward being a national newspaper, and when I'm travelling in the Midwest, I see the Journal everywhere in places I didn't.

So I don't want to act like they're buffoons. But the Daily, which I thought was a really good idea, I think turns out to be a really bad idea.

So what are your thoughts on Metro?

It gets read where I am. I think they've mastered the art of presentation.

I wonder about the ad economics of how sticky your advertisers think you are.

But, you know, it went from being decoration on the subways to something that gets read, gets looked at.

And I'm from weeklies, so I understand the free model. I've been involved in it for a long, long time, and it's not a bad place to be in when everybody thinks information should be free anyway.

A monstrous box-office hit

Transformers posts the biggest opening ever in seven countries

HANDOUT

▶ Transformers: Dark of the Moon

Director Michael Bay's third installment in the Transformers franchise proved to be a monstrous international hit this week, taking in a whopping $210 million and in the process posting the biggest opening of all-time in seven countries, lead by Korea with $28 million.

In its first six and a half days, Dark of the Moon from Paramount became a global sensation, earning nearly $400 million with 60 per cent of the North American and 70 per cent of the international business generated by 3-D showings.

IMAX set its own global record with Transformers 3 as well, with $23.1 million in global sales since the film's launch.

In a distant second place is the Walt Disney release of Cars 2, also in 3-D, with $22.1 million in its second weekend.

The latest film from the hugely successful Pixar Animation Studio has a global cumulative gross approaching $200 million and is finding favour in the international marketplace with family audiences who can relate to its internationally themed storyline.

Rounding out this international 3-D triple-play is Kung Fu Panda 2 in third place with $19 million.

Conan O'Brien coming to a theatre near you

Conan O'Brien Can't Stop
Genre: Documentary
Director: Rodman Flender
Stars: Conan O'Brien, Andy Richter, Stephen Colbert
●●●

This documentary about O'Brien's 32-city pity tour after being turfed as host of The Tonight Show could more rightly be called Multi Millionaires Just Wanna Have Fun.

The flame-haired host repeatedly says he took his act on the road to have fun, but why doesn't he look like he's having any?

Wedged between rehearsal, onstage and candid backstage footage is a portrait of a wounded man struggling with a grave personal and professional disappointment. It's like watching someone go through a bad breakup for 90 minutes, with musical numbers and the odd joke. For all showbiz aficionados but primarily for Coco completests. ● RICHARD CROUSE

Controversial mother given chance to make 'transition'

RED HUBER/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Casey Anthony

We're going to hell for re-reporting this, but you're going to hell for reading it, so see you there. Hours after Casey Anthony, the Florida mother accused of murdering her two-year-old daughter, was found not guilty (in a controversial verdict), Steve Hirsch, the head of porn company Vivid Entertainment, called to offer her a job, reports TMZ.

"Whether you agree with the verdict or not, Casey will want to move forward with her life and has a right to make a living. It's not going to be easy for her and we believe we can help her make the transition into a new life," he told the site. Pure class.

Domestic violence charge dropped against Lohan's dad

FRAZER HARRISON/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Michael Lohan

Prosecutors have dropped a misdemeanour domestic violence charge against Lindsay Lohan's father after his ex-girlfriend failed to show up at trial.

District attorney's spokeswoman Sandi Gibbons said Tuesday the office will no longer pursue the case against Michael Lohan after his ex-girlfriend, Kate Major, could not be located.

The elder Lohan was arrested in March and has pleaded not guilty to misdemeanour domestic violence battery.

A trial was scheduled to begin Tuesday, but Gibbons said it could not proceed without Major's co-operation.

Michael Lohan's attorney, Dana Cole, says he worked out an agreement with Major so she wouldn't testify.

Cole says Major wasn't paid anything, and she declined to co-operate because she did not want a court spectacle.

Lady A's leading lady gets engaged

Lady Antebellum's Hillary Scott is engaged.

The 25-year-old singer's boyfriend, Chris Tyrell, popped the question over the Fourth of July weekend at a family getaway in East Tennessee.

Scott and the 24-year-old drummer met while touring with Tim McGraw in early 2010. People first reported the engagement Tuesday.

Scott is the second member of Lady A to end her single ways. Charles Kelley is married, leaving Dave Haywood as the lone available member of the Grammy-winning trio.

Lady A turned in the top-selling country album of 2010 with Need You Now and is preparing to release its follow-up, Own The Night, due out Sept. 13.

The message from Milan and Paris for spring/summer 2012 is to lighten up and get in the swing of things ('60s style) Here's our breakdown of what was trending on the catwalks for the latest round of men's shows

Men on spring/summer trends

RICHARD PECKETT
METRO WORLD NEWS

Brights, prints and all things loud

If you're not one for colour, you'd best learn to love it as it's going to be all over the place come next spring. Burberry showed ikat prints, raffia bobble hats and cork-soled, woven moccasin shoes. A possible answer to Prada's insanely popular flatform shoe? Maybe. Givenchy had obviously read the print memo too. The house rolled with Hawaiian surfer chic. That means lush, tropical prints and yes, skirts.

That '60s vibe

Get ready to start buying slimmer suits. It was back to the swinging '60s with designers taking inspiration from Carnaby Street and a young Michael Caine. Alexander McQueen went all Savile row meets rock 'n' roll with pyjama-style striped pants, a Mick Jagger-esque oversized dress shirt and even a flame print jacket. Conversely, Gucci went for slimmer silhouettes to suit the rakish,womanizer in Prince of Wales check and houndstooth.

Peek-a-boo

If you're the type who likes to flash a bit of skin than the season's trend for transparent clothing might be for you. Giorgio Armani, Dolce & Gabbana and Maison Martin Margiela all teased with sheer and diaphanous knits. But of course, it was the Dolce & Gabbana duo that took it a step further with a nod to Sicilian fishing heritage. Sounds quaint but boy will it take some ballsy blokes to pull it off! The look: Mesh netting worn over sweaters.

Sporting Olympic chic

Olympic tickets may be hard to come by, but there's no shortage of sporty references in the collections. Calvin Klein looked to '80s athletic wear while Vivienne Westwood parodied the games with Olympic orb tees.

BRIGHT BELTS

Guys, loosen up – look-wise, that is. Put a little spring in your jeans-and-Tee combo by trying a colourful belt like this peppy style.

Fight blemishes naturally with the help of Kit Expert Celeste Lutrario, vice-president of research and development at Burt's Bees.
By Janine Falcon

Are natural acne-fighting products any less harsh than standard formulas?

"The key ingredient in most anti-blemish products is synthetic salicylic acid, which is effective, but can dry out the skin," says Lutrario. Natural salicylic acid, a component of willow bark extract, is effective, too, but in a different way, she adds.

Far from a-Dior-able

Hoots and thunderous applause erupted from backstage, but the audience at the Dior show Monday greeted the storied label's fall-winter 2011-12 haute couture with a short-lived flurry of halfhearted claps.

The collection was the first in 15 years not under the label's disgraced former creative director, John Galliano – and it showed.

The collection simply lacked cohesion. With sections that channeled the fluorescent pop esthetic of the 1980s, a sort of 1970s Marrakech bohemian vibe, and shiny modernist architecture, the show felt like a bunch of ideas thrown almost randomly together. It was like watching three shows in one – and not a particularly inspiring three shows, at that.

The nipped jackets and puffy skirts were embellished with the sort of amoeba-shaped appliques in eyepopping shades that were last seen on the costumes of 1987 teen pop sensation Tiffany and worn with oversized plastic cubes or spheres in guise of hats.

Kate opted for more formal attire for the Yellowknife leg of the royal tour, choosing to sport the look of a Danish label for the first time on her trip to Canada.

The Duchess of Cambridge wore a Bullet dress from By Malene Birger as she and Prince William did a walkabout Tuesday among the crowds clamouring to catch a glimpse of the royal newlyweds in the Northwest Territories capital.

The linen dress has slightly accentuated shoulders, three-quarter-length sleeves and a contrast waistband in olive green.

Kate remained in her designer dress as she dropped the ball in a ceremonial faceoff and watched while her husband, clad in full suit and tie, took part in an organized game of shinny. The couple also paid a visit to the legislative assembly for a session of youth Parliament, followed by a reception.

"I think the look is subtle and sophisticated," Winners spokeswoman Shannon Johnson said of Kate's latest dress in an email to The Canadian Press.

"I love the tailored silhouette. It's extremely figure flattering but totally demure."

Kate later switched into more laid-back clothes for a float plane ride, wearing a khaki-coloured, button-up shirt tucked into dark blue, ankle-length tapered pants.

Johnson said she would characterize Kate's overall look as sophisticated versus "safe."

Members of the Building Industry & Land Development Association receive monthly internal newsletters written by the foremost housing economists in Canada.

The Canadian Home Builders' Association newsletter is written by Dr. Peter Andersen. The BILD newsletter is authored by Dr. Frank Clayton.

They comment on the Greater Toronto condo market this month, both from the rental perspective.

Clayton writes that the global real estate and investment community must be "spellbound" by what is happening in the new condominium apartment market in the GTA — with both April and May sales breaking all previous records for these months.

"The 2,433 May sales bring sales this year to 11,208 units, and we still have seven months remaining," Clayton notes.

Knowing that investors are significant buyers of new condos, Clayton examined the health of the GTA resale condo rental market last month and concluded there is "no sign yet of an oversupply of rental condos."

He points out that the latest Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation survey of vacancies in conventional rental apartment buildings (excludes rental condos) conducted in April is positive for rental condos take up with the conventional rental apartment market in the GTA tightening — the overall vacancy rate declined to 1.6 per cent from 2.7 per cent a year earlier.

Clayton sees Multiple Listing Service (MLS) resales of condo apartments are "still characterized by momentum with sales strong, listings dropping and average prices rising."

Meanwhile, Andersen writes, "Despite the surge in multi-family housing starts, rental markets are getting tighter in Canada. The national rental market vacancy rate has declined to 2.5 per cent — down from 2.9 per cent a year ago. The 1.6 per cent vacancy rate in Toronto is well below the national average."

Regular rooftops will go green with envy

They're not just for urban gardeners ◐ If applied all over Toronto, green roofs could result in tens of millions of dollars in savings, according to the city

DUNCAN MCALLISTER
HOMES@METRONEWS.CA

Rooftop gardens and terraces are an increasingly popular amenity for Toronto condominiums and provide an excellent common area for residents to enjoy a little of the outdoors in the inner city.

But did you know that a green roof provides many environmental advantages as well?

The elevated urban green space is essentially a roof of a building that has been partially or completely covered with vegetation and a growing medium, planted over a waterproof membrane.

Beata Domanska is chair of the green committee at her building, the Hugh Garner Housing Co-operative on Ontario Street, which boasts one of the largest residential, multi-unit green roofs in Canada.

The building was in need of a new roof at the time, and the residents opted for something "not as toxic and wasteful as a conventional roof," says Domanska, who played an instrumental role in planning the 8,000 square foot south roof.

Completed in May of 2010 at a total cost of $800,000, it has already accounted for a significant reduction in the building's power consumption.

Plans are underway to complete the north roof, which would bring the total green area to 22,000 square feet.

A green roof can extend the useful life of a building roof by 20 to 25 years.

Eco leader

Although green roofs are a fairly new trend for urban condos, they are not new to Toronto.

- The Manulife Centre has maintained a well-established green roof for the past 25 years, located over a parking garage, with mature trees that reach three stories high.
- York University installed a 30,000 square foot green roof during the construction of the Computer Sciences Building in 2003.

The combination of layers of waterproofing, insulation and topsoil results in less heat absorption by the building, which translates to less air conditioning.

The Hugh Garner rooftop is well thought out. The network of plant beds are designed around a self-irrigating water system that collects up to five inches of rainwater underneath the paving stones.

The entire area underfoot acts as a reservoir and recycles the water back into the vegetation, thus significantly saving on the use of city water.

The rooftop is fully accessible; planters are set at low height with barrier-free corridors and ramps.

The City of Toronto has published various studies that show numerous benefits of green roofs, from a reduction in storm water runoff that improves the quality of the local water supply, to reduced energy consumption for cooling and the urban heat island effect.

THE KEY ISSUE

LEGAL MATTERS

JEFFREY COWAN
HOME
@METRONEWS.CA

Q: I purchased a condo last week and when I went to my lawyer's office to pick up the keys, I received one key to the living unit.

It was indicated that the rest of the keys are usually in the property on the kitchen counter or some other place that is obvious.

When I went to the building, the security guard had to let me in to the lobby and when I went into my new home there was only one key for the mailbox and no entry fobs or extra keys.

When I phoned my lawyer, she indicated that they had no control over the keys and that I should speak to the building management. I did just that and they indicated that they could provide entry fobs at a cost of $50 per fob and extra keys at the same cost. What are my options?

A: Generally, when I advise clients who are selling a property, I instruct them to provide entry keys to our office and then leave ALL extra copies in the property. The same instructions apply for a condo or a house.

However, most condo corp's charge a fee for their entry fobs and keys for common area entry. Therefore, the vendor will sometimes return their fobs for a refund (personally I think this is unnecessary when you put the entire cost of the transaction into perspective).

That being said, all you are basically entitled to is access to your new home: extra fobs and keys are just that, extra.

I don't understand why if you are paying hundreds of thousands of dollars for a property, that the vendor would not leave all of the access devices but just as your lawyer stated, we have no control over what is or is not provided above basic access.

Making art from home

Give your photos a second life by turning them into creative and unique decor pieces

DESIGN CENTRE

KARL LOHNES
HOME@METRONEWS.CA

There used to be a time when families would proudly display framed vacation, school and family photos as part of their decor. Nowadays, all my photos are locked away in my computer and although easily emailed to friends and family, very rarely do I have any cool photos on display in my house.

New printing options will let you turn a simple photo into some fantastic artwork for the home.

Resizing your photos

Try cropping your favourite photo into a small 4" by 4" square and surround it with a very large white matte, then frame with a modern black wood frame.

This makes a simple image instantly look more modern. You can also turn coloured photos into black and white images — a great way to give a collage of framed photos some consistency.

Making poster-sized art

To make a small space feel bigger simply add large art or mirrors. This creates a big impact while taking up no precious floor space!

My favourite poster art is children's fridge art. Scan a brightly coloured painted handprint page and have it enlarged into poster-sized paper.

A simple frame (try Ikea) will help to give your new poster sized art a professionally-finished look.

One large poster of homemade art can look special whereas more than one looks a bit common.

Printing on canvas

The texture of the canvas and the thick edges of the stretcher frame will give an artful look to the simplest of pictures.

Using photophore, consider modifying your photo to make it a bit more artful. The antiquing, colour contrasting and black/white imaging are my favourites.

Printing on metal

Consider reprinting your digital photo on a sheet of stainless steel.

The sheen of the stainless steel appears beneath the artwork to help give a very contemporary and reflective quality to your artwork.

A lovely landscape shot, digitalized in black/white or sepia tone will take on a mysterious look when printed on metal.

Laser printing

Laser printing allows you to enlarge or reduce your image for big or small impact. Why not reproduce Grannie's portrait in black and white, then re-paint on brightly coloured makeup for a Warhol-ish look.

Frame matters

Create a real designer by framing modern-style art pieces with traditional frames.

One of my favourite art pieces is a black and white photo of a single flower and it is framed in a super-fancy carved frame that has been spray painted in electric blue colour.

Keeping cool in summer

Don't underestimate a ceiling fan when it comes to surviving the dog days of July and August

ISTOCK IMAGES

▶ Fall asleep under a gentle breeze on a hot summer's night.

DIY IDEAS

It may feel nice to keep the AC on full blast from now until September, but when you do that, you're running your energy costs sky-high and not doing Mother Nature any favours.

We spoke with Taniya Nayak, host of HGTV's House Hunters on Vacation, who offered some better tips for beating the summer heat.

Paint zen colours

"The light, more powdery pastel colours are very cooling and soothing. You could even go tan as long as it's like a grayish-taupy tan."

Pick the right shades

"If you're going to do window treatments, you could just add white window shades. They're white so they'll reflect the light off. Cellular shades or honeycomb shades are awesome too because they almost trap the heat in the cellular compartments of the shade. They're a little more expensive, but I think if you're living in a house for a long time it would be a good investment to make."

Replace your rugs

"If you have a heavy carpet, a really inexpensive solution is to pick up one of those natural fibre jute rugs. They're almost very nautical in a sense so it gives you that sense of coolness. It makes you feel like you're on the beach."

Switch out your light bulbs

"Most people have incandescent bulbs but they burn a lot of energy, so you could swap them out for a more energy-efficient fluorescent bulb."

Work with nature

"If you plant trees on the south or west sides of your house, it'll keep it cooler in the summer but it'll actually keep it warmer in the winters because the sun sets and rises on the opposite side in the winter."

Stay away during mid-day

"Sometimes it's a better idea to shower in the morning or at night and not in middle of the day; same thing with doing dishes, washing and drying your clothes, cooking — all that stuff can help reduce heat in the house. You're just trying to avoid that midday heat — that's when it's the worst."

Think long-term

"If you're going to live there for awhile it might be worth [adding] insulation to your attic. You could go up to like 12 inches of insulation and it'll dramatically reduce the heat that's in your house."

LET THE SUMMER SUN IN

CHARLES THE BUTLER

ASKCHARLES THEBUTLER@METRONEWS.CA
FOR MORE, VISIT CHARLES MACPHERSON.COM

With summer finally here — I want to let the sunshine in! What's the best way to clean filthy windows outside?
Betty, Edmonton

Dear Betty:

First, you should remove any excess dirt and grime from the windows.

Do this with a watering hose or a pail filled with lots of fresh clean water and a capful of dish soap.

Once you have removed the surface dirt you are ready to clean the windows to a streak-free shine.

Here are several options to consider:

1. A good commercial cleaner (with ammonia) and newspaper does a wonderful job.

2. A solution of 50 per cent water and 50 per cent vinegar is great.

Spray this onto the window and then use either newspaper or a microfiber cloth to wipe the window dry, thus avoiding streaks.

3. A pail full of warm, clean water with a capful of dish soap will also do the job. Use a sponge to wash the window and then use a squeegee to leave the glass crystal clean.

▶ You can still do spring cleaning in the summer.

Question:
My husband managed to stain his best shorts with pen ink. How do I get out the stain?
Laura, Victoria

Hello Laura:

Good news — this is a relatively easy stain to remove. Pour a few capfuls of pure rubbing alcohol into a little dish.

Now, dip a clean cotton swab into the alcohol and slowly and gently rub it onto the ink stain.

As the cotton swab starts to absorb the ink, change it for a clean one. Remember: be patient.

Non-removable ink stains will not come out, and please do test the fabric with the alcohol in a hidden area before you start working on the stain.

SUMMER BRINGS THE SUNSHINE IN

Whether you let the sun in or seek the shade today, Hunter Douglas Canada LP has a new product to help. This May, the Brampton-based manufacturer and marketer of custom window coverings debuted award-winning additions to several of its product lines. Here are the highlights, each of them honoured at this year's Window Covering Manufacturers Association (WCMA) Product Awards:

PRODUCT OF THE YEAR

Designed for expansive windows and doors, the new Vignette® Traversed™ with Vertiglide™ Shade combines the look of Vignette shades with the convenience and easy operation of a vertical window covering.

Vignette Traversed

MOST INNOVATIVE OVERALL CONCEPT — GREEN PRODUCTS: ENERGY EFFICIENCY

Honoured for energy efficiency at the WCMA awards, the Vignette® Tiered™ Architella® Modern Roman Shades offer Vignette shades with a sound absorption rating higher than any other Hunter Douglas product. None of the Vignette shade products have exposed rear cords.

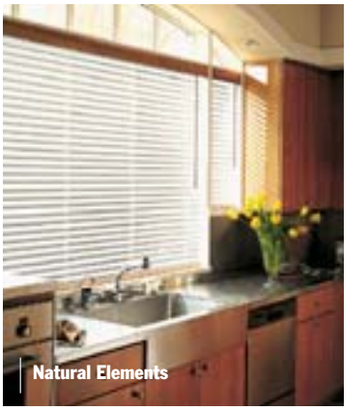
JUDGES' AWARD WINNER

Fabrics in the 2011 Luminette® Privacy Sheers & Luminette® Modern Draperies Collection come available with Manhattan™ Decorative Hardware, consisting of decorative drapery rails and finials with a combination wand/cord operating system. Three optional finials are available, in addition to the standard button.

The Luminette

BEST OVERALL CONCEPT — MISCELLANEOUS

The Luminette® Modern Draperies Ribbon Panel design combines a seamless rippled fabric with deep dimensionality and a uniform appearance, making it a noteworthy new drapery choice for consumers.



Natural Elements

BEST NEW STYLE CONCEPT — HORIZONTAL BLINDS

The Natural Elements™ Collection of modern precious metals blinds mixes two-inch metal slats with a wood valance, bottom rail, and tassels. Customers choose their slat finish and wood accent colour to match blinds to their room's decor.

BEST NEW STYLE CONCEPT — GREEN PRODUCTS: SUSTAINABILITY

Hunter Douglas also has new additions to its Duette Architella® line of shades, debuting new Batiste Textured, linen-inspired and Batiste Bamboo fabrics with IllumiCell™, a clear inner honeycomb that allows greater transmission of light, making the fabric's natural texture more visible. The bamboo fabric is Hunter Douglas' first sustainable honeycomb fabric.

SPOTLIGHT ON SHADES

Hunter Douglas Canada's motorized shades move when you want them to — but it's how they move that's the most interesting. The company's family of Platinum™ Technology Accessory products now includes:

• A Solar Energy Sensor, which detects solar energy entering your home through a window and sends a radio frequency signal to raise or lower window coverings, increasing energy efficiency;

• An LCD Timer, which can be set to automatically raise, lower, traverse or tilt a specific window covering or group of coverings at any time, making your home look lived in while you are away; and

• An RF Adapter, which is a unique product that senses AC power at a standard outlet and emits a radio frequency signal to open or close assigned window coverings. The RF Adaptor can be used in conjunction with a simple off-the-shelf lamp timer or a switched outlet.

The elegance of Pirouette®
Pirouette® with UltraGlide®

Of grilled shrimp & spicy prawn summer dishes

Fresh mango salsa and grilled shrimp skewers dress up spaghetti for the warm weather

THE CANADIAN PRESS H/O

This dish will serve six.

This summery pasta dish infused with Latin American flavours is a delightful option to serve and it is easy on the budget.

The recipe is also packed with healthy antioxidant and nutrient-rich ingredients such as mango and red pepper.

Removing the seeds from the jalapeno peppers takes away much of the heat. You can adjust the amount of jalapeno used to your taste. When working with jalapeños, ensure you wash you hands before touching your eyes.

If desired, replace shrimp with grilled skewers of boneless, skinless chicken breast.

Ingredients:

- 1 box (375 g) whole-grain spaghetti
- 50 ml (1/4 cup) lime juice
- 45 ml (3 tbsp) canola oil
- 10 ml (2 tsp) each finely grated lime zest and honey
- 3 cloves garlic, minced
- 500 g (1 lb) peeled, uncooked large shrimp
- 2 ripe mangoes, peeled, chopped and divided
- 2 red peppers, chopped
- 175 ml (3/4 cup) chopped red onion
- 2 jalapeno peppers, seeded and chopped
- 2 ml (1/2 tsp) each salt and pepper
- 250 ml (1 cup) coarsely chopped fresh coriander

Preparation:

1. Preheat grill to medium-high heat.
2. In a small bowl, whisk lime juice with oil, lime zest, honey and garlic. In a separate bowl, toss shrimp with 30 ml (2 tbsp) of the dressing. Let stand for 10 minutes. Thread shrimp onto 6 large wooden skewers that have been soaked in water to minimize flare ups.
3. Place remaining dressing mix and one mango in the bowl of a food processor fitted with a metal blade. Pulse until finely chopped. Add remaining mango, red peppers, onion, jalapeños, salt and pepper; pulse until coarsely chopped.
4. Prepare spaghetti according to package directions; drain well. Grill shrimp skewers for 3 minutes per side or until pink all over. Toss hot spaghetti with mango salsa mix and coriander. Garnish each portion with a shrimp skewer. THE CANADIAN PRESS/ CATELLI HEALTHY HARVEST

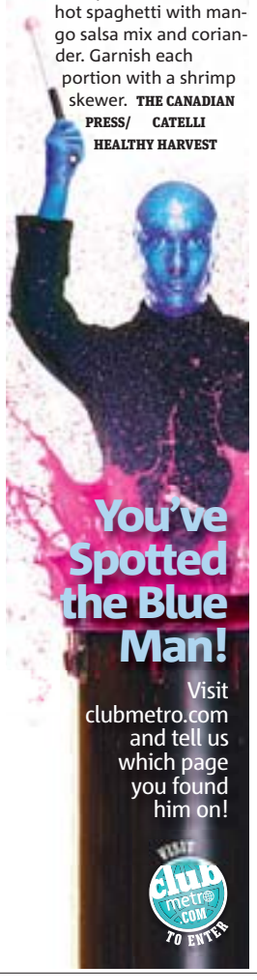
Delight summer party guests with these spicy prawn appetizers

Preparation:

1. In a sauté pan over medium-high heat, add olive oil and prawns. Cook for 2 to 4 minutes per side until shrimp turn orange-red and opaque. Add chili garlic paste and stir to coat, continuing to cook for 30 seconds. Remove from heat and set aside.
2. In a medium bowl, combine cilantro, avocados, green onion, lemon juice and zest. Top each cracker with 5 ml (1 tsp) avocado spread and 1 prawn. Garnish with cilantro leaf. Serve immediately. THE CANADIAN PRESS/ AVOCADOS FROM MEXICO (MISSAVOCADO.COM)

Ingredients:

- 15 ml (1 tbsp) olive oil
- 20 large prawns, shelled
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) chili garlic paste
- 50 ml (1/4 cup) chopped fresh cilantro
- 2 avocados, finely diced
- 1 green onion, sliced
- 1 lemon (juice and zest)
- 20 sesame crackers
- 20 cilantro leaves



Kitchen talk with Canada's Top Chef

Dale MacKay, the winner of Top Chef Canada and owner of Vancouver's French restaurant Ensemble (and protégé of chef Gordon Ramsay), chops it up with Metro.

What's the one ingredient you must have in your kitchen at all times?
Spices are probably one of the most important ingredients that I use. I have a love for them all, but kaffir lime is something that I use a lot of.

What food do you feel is the most underrated?
Brussel sprouts. People boil them and it's just not very tasty. But when you roast and cook them with bacon and other things, they're one of the most delicious veggies.

What is your guilty pleasure or comfort food?
Barbecue. All types of barbecue — pulled pork, ribs, flank, you know.

If you could go toe-to-toe with a chef, who would it be?
But I'd say Gordon Ramsay. I worked for him so it'd be hilarious to try to beat the master.

Toronto FC trampled by Henry's Red Bulls

5	0
RED BULLS	TFC

Thierry Henry and Luke Rodgers scored in a five-minute span of the first half, and the New York Red Bulls moved into first place in the Eastern Conference with a 5-0 victory over Toronto FC last night.

Jan Gunnar Solli set up the goals in the 33rd and 38th minutes, and Joel Lindpere scored and assisted on two goals by Juan Agudelo in the second half to turn it into a rout.

The five goals were a season high for New York.

Hamilton native Greg Sutton made five saves as New York moved a point ahead of Philadelphia — which has played two fewer games — with only its second win since May 7 (2-2-8).

Toronto, which snapped a nine-game winless streak last week by beating Vancouver, is 1-5-5 in its last 11 matches.

Rough night for Romero

Toronto ace gives up six runs and nine hits to Boston in 4⅓ innings

6	4
RED SOX	BLUE JAYS

ELSA/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Travis Snider is caught stealing second by Boston's Dustin Pedroia.

It was a barrage of blasts and bloops; double, single, single, double, double that alternately bashed the Green Monster and nestled gently onto the lush Fenway Park grass.

A flurry of five hits in about a dozen fourth-inning pitches, a series of missed spots, fastballs up and curves hung, will undoubtedly put a bit of a damper on Ricky Romero's all-star break.

One of the aces of the Jays staff couldn't survive five innings last night in Boston, getting lit up for six earned runs and nine hits, including two home runs, as the Red Sox won the rubber match of a three-game series with a 6-4 decision.

Romero, who isn't scheduled to start again until the Jays open the unofficial second half of the season next week, was battered around by the bottom third of the Red Sox order in the decisive fourth inning.

After retiring the first two hitters with relative ease, he gave up a double to J.D. Drew, singles to Darnell McDonald and Jarrod Saltalamacchia and doubles to Yamaico Navarro and Jacoby Ellsbury faster than you can say: "Hey, get someone up in the bullpen."

When the barrage was over, the Sox had turned a 3-2 deficit into a 6-3 lead and provided all the support knuckleballer Tim Wakefield would need.

Wakefield went seven innings, giving up nine hits but only three runs with seven strikeouts and a walk. He gave way to a series of Boston relievers who shut the Jays down in a game delayed 40 minutes by rain in the top of the eighth.

Wakefield, the ageless wonder of the injury-ravaged Red Sox staff, did what he usually does: Eat innings and keep his team in the game.

Burke sticks to his guns on contracts

Brian Burke is known for making bold moves to try to improve his team, but there are some things he simply won't do.

The Toronto Maple Leafs general manager believes he missed out on a chance to land Brad Richards in free agency because of his aversion to front-loaded contracts designed to lower the salary cap hit. It's a tactic several NHL teams have employed — including the New York Rangers, who landed Richards — but Burke refuses to follow suit.

"We made a very substantial offer to Brad Richards," Burke said yesterday during the Leafs' prospect camp. "What we offered I don't think is material. We lost out on the Brad Richards sweepstakes for two reasons — one, we didn't offer as much money as other teams and, more importantly, we didn't structure the contract like other teams did.

"These deals that are front-end loaded and have small amounts on the back end, in my opinion, are designed to circumvent the salary cap. I won't do them, I never have, I'm not going to."

The Leafs are believed to have offered Richards a six-year contract in the neighbourhood of $42 million US.

Instead, the highly coveted centre accepted a nine-year mega-deal from the Rangers that pays him $24 million in the first two seasons and $36 million over the remaining seven.
